The battered bus was pulled from the river Sunday and the bodies of 14 children and the driver, John Derossett, were recovered. ## Find Bodies Of 15 Children, Driver

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (UP)—Grieving relatives stood silently on the banks of the Big Sandy River today watching dragging operations for victims of the nation's worst school bus accident.

The stoic attitude of Coast Guard crew members in rescue operations softened when they recovered the body of a small girl about a half mile from the point where the bus plunged over a 50-foot cliff into the swiftly running river Friday.

She was taken to a temporary morgue and identified by her grief-stricken father as Linda Darby, 15. Her sister, Imogene, was still among the missing.

Then they continued the search for 11 other bodies. The bodies of 15 children and the driver, John Derossett, 27, have been recovered. Officials feared the remaining victims may have been washed miles downstream by the rushing current.

Bus Hauled from River

Bereaved families were making burial plans. Earl Spurlock, president of the First National Bank of Prestonsburg, said about $20,000 has been pledged or donated to help families with the burial expense.

Two construction tractors hauled the battered, mud-caked bus from the rain swollen river Sunday. It was found 100 yards downstream from the point where it had plunged into the river.

Fourteen youngsters scrambled to safety minutes before the bus settled on the bottom.

Classes Suspended

Roy Turner, superintendent of

Floyd County schools, suspended all classes in the county indefinitely because of the tragedy in this eastern Kentucky mountain community. He said no mass burial was planned.

The bodies were taken to a temporary morgue set up at a U. S. Army Reserve training station near here. Parents then began the fearful task of identifying the dead children.

When the bus was pulled to the surface, the bloated body of a girl hung limply from the rear door—a grim reminder of the agony that preceded death for the trapped youngsters.

The bodies of 12 other children were found in the two feet of mud that covered the bus floor. Derossett's body was found slumped in his seat.

Water-logged books, lunch pails and school bags and a small rubber ball were found in the slime. The articles were all collected and put on display at the morgue for parents to claim.

Windows Broken

Broken windows in the bus were mute testimony to the struggle put up by the passengers to escape their watery trap.

"They all seem to be in such awful positions, as if they were fighting for their lives," a worker said.

The current, which at times reached eight miles per hour, had pushed the bus on its right side against the bank opposite from its entry point. A worker probing with a 30-foot steel pole from a raft located the vehicle.

Romance of Words Discussed by Etymologist at Dinner Club Meeting

Dr. Rowland Myers, a noted etymologist, who has devoted many years to research on the English language, entertained members of the Southern Illinois Dinner Club Saturday night with an address on "Romance of Words." The meeting was held at Kurto Country club.

Dr. Myers entertainingly discussed the problem of use of words in the English language through mistakes and confusion which results in differences of opinion on the meaning of words.

"What is correct usually means what is socially in use in the area where it is heard," Dr. Myers said. "The average American blithely goes along mispronouncing words, but they are socially acceptable because everyone else does," he stated.

Our use of the English language, Dr. Myers said, is confusing to people of foreign nations who do not understand the various meanings words have in the English language. Words themselves do not always describe the meanings, he said, but many times it takes the emphasis of sound to describe the various meanings of the same word.

Many words through use down the years tend to "wear out," while correct use and pronunciation makes other words grow stronger.

All languages are rich and beautiful, Dr. Myers said, but the English language is the only language in the world where you can have a spelling bee. And spelling bees should be held, he said, to make the correct spelling and use of the words more common.

The use of the same language all over the world would not solve the problem of use of words because of the various meanings the same words have, Dr. Myers said.

"We will have to go on learning the other nations' languages as the world grows smaller, and at the same time we must try to teach them our language," Dr. Myers said.

He predicted that in time the world will have one language, but it will be entirely different from any in use now, a new language which will come only after all the turmoils of the present world have been solved.

He discussed the pitfalls in the use of words, such as taking words out of context and by leaving some words out completely changing the meaning of a statement.

He also discussed the use of words and phrases, especially in diplomacy, "to beat around the bush," without speaking in plain language.

"We are judged by our use of words which are important weapons, but different usage of words also can be fun," Dr. Myers concluded.

Dr. William Johnson of Eldorado, president of the Dinner club, presided at the meeting. He announced the next meeting was planned for April 12.

The speaker was introduced by Paul McKinnis of Eldorado, and the invocation was given by William Putnam of Eldorado.

Survivors Tell Of Panic Aboard Turkish Ferry

ISTANBUL (UP)—Survivors of Turkey's worst sea disaster said today wild panic swept the overcrowded coastal ferry Uskudar before it capsized and sank Saturday in the Sea of Marmara.

Only 40 persons are known to have survived the sinking, which caused an estimated 250 deaths. The bodies of 81 victims have been buried in mass funerals, and the others are being sought.

The U. S. aid mission at Goleuk assisted in caring for injured survivors.

It is unlikely that anyone will ever know how many were on the Uskudar. Hundreds of people had scrambled aboard the ill-fated ferry, many of them students traveling on passes.

The crowd was so dense with scores of passengers forced to stand, that the captain pulled out 10 minutes early on the 20-mile trip from Izmit to Karamurser. About 100 would-be passengers missed the boat.

Turkey Yangol, a student survivor, described the ferry passengers' frantic fight for life.

"The Uskudar was brim full," he said, "with no more room to sit anywhere. A crewman asked Capt. Mehmet Ahici if he was going to sail."

"Sure," Ahici replied. "In this weather (it was hot and windy) we'll sink if the boat stays at the landing." So the Uskudar left 10 minutes early.

"For about 15 minutes everything went well. Then water began filling the boat and the strong wind began rocking it, causing it to heel over. That was when the panic started. People rushed for the lifesavers."

Supervisors Seek to Dress Up Unsightly Areas

Urge High Fences Around Junk Yards; Cleaner Highways

The Saline County Board of Supervisors got into the clean-up, dress-up act Saturday.

The board, meeting at the Saline county court house in special session, decided to do what could be done to remedy the sight of junk yards along highways and to do other things which might brighten the appearance of the Saline county community.

It was voted that supervisors from townships which contain municipalities should meet with the city councils or village boards to discuss uniform ordinances which could be written regulating unsightly places.

Then there would be a joint meeting of representatives of municipalities, of the townships and other interested persons including the dealers themselves to work out a plan of action.

Questions Board Powers

The meeting originally was called to see if the county board could pass a license requiring junk places outside corporate limits to build high fences around their premises. However, State's Attorney Robert V. Wilson said the statutes give cities a lot more authority than counties in such matters and he questioned the control powers of the county board unless public health was involved. It was suggested by Board Member Herman McFarlin that townships can license junk yards and that the various townships could set up requirements for these licenses that would include fencing.

Dumping of trash on roads was brought up by County Road Superintendent Ralph Brown, who urged a strong enforcement of laws already in existence against trash dumpers.

Mayor Claud Gibbons and Commissioner Sneed Jordan represented the City of Harrisburg and there were city officials from Galatia present at the meeting. All pledged the co-operation of their city governments in getting the job

Investigate Third Fire at Methodist District Parsonage

Third fire call in a little over two weeks to the Methodist district parsonage occupied by the Rev. Maurice Winn and family occurred at 3:20 p. m. Sunday and an investigation was being made.

Fire Chief L. G. Martin said the fire at the residence at 323 West Logan was in the pantry off the kitchen and that there was slight damage to the pantry. Several burned matches were found on the floor, he said.

Last Thursday noon there was considerable damage to a closet and bedroom from a fire that started in a closet. Previously there was a fire in a closet and a rug fire in the basement and there was a call made on one of these fires.

Another run was made last night by the fire department yesterday, to the home of Jesse Rouse at the rear of 818 East Church at 11:15. An oil stove had become overheated but there was no damage.

Missing Bride-to-Be Returns from Cross Country Bus Ride; Says 'Mixed Up'

NEW YORK (UP)—The timid Brooklyn seamstress who disappeared five hours before her wedding came home Sunday and said she had been riding a bus for nine days — from New York to Los Angeles and back.

"I went for personal reasons," Irene Arzedi, 29, said. "I was mixed up about a lot of things. I'm sorry for all the trouble I caused."

She said she still plans to marry her life-long neighbor and long-time sweetheart, Joseph Pinto, 31, with whom she was reunited with tears and fervent kisses.

Miss Arzedi, who was to have been married Feb. 22, said she had no idea how much trouble her disappearance had caused until she reached Los Angeles last Wednesday, and saw a newspaper.

Then, she said, "I was afraid to call mother."

The tiny sewing machine operator, whose life had been almost entirely bounded by a few Brooklyn blocks in which she lived and worked, dropped from sight shortly before noon on her wedding day after she had made a few purchases at a neighborhood drug store.

While her family and police combed the neighborhood and searched cellars and snow piles in fear she had had an accident or met with foul play, she was sitting in a Manhattan bus terminal, she said.

Miss Arzedi said that as she was

Fuchs to Return To Britain to Receive Acclaim

McMURDO SOUND (UP)—British explorer Vivian Fuchs, first man ever to lead an expedition clear across Antarctica, began preparing today to return to Britain where public acclaim and a knighthood await him.

The Fuchs party is expected to leave by ship later this week for New Zealand, where the explorer will board an England-bound plane. An ice breakup has made air travel from here difficult and dangerous.

Fuchs' 2,100-mile trans-Antarctic trek ended Sunday at New Zealand's base on the Antarctic coast, a few miles from the U. S. camp here.

Queen Elizabeth, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and the Royal Geographical Society radiated congratulations to Fuchs. The RGS also congratulated Sir Edmund Hillary, New Zealand's conqueror of Mt. Everest, who guided the Fuchs party over the last stages of the journey.

Fuchs was notified that the Queen will knight him when he returns to London.

The Rev. Chas. Hurt Called to Pastorate of Church at Shawneetown

Rev. Charles Hurt preached his first sermon in his new pastorate, Sunday at the Shawneetown Baptist church. He was called to this pulpit recently from Harrisburg where he had been assistant pastor and educational director of the First Baptist church for 20 months.

Rev. and Mrs. Hurt and their three children, Martin Charles Tonda and Debby, will take up residence in Shawneetown during March after some repairs have put the manse in readiness.

The first sermon subject at Shawneetown was "What We Hope For, Through the Church." This was a message of hope and inspiration for the accomplishments of the minister with the help of his congregation.

The Rev. Hurt fills the pulpit left vacant by the resignation of the Rev. Rey Pady two months ago. The Rev. Pady has taken a pastorate at Mt. Vernon, Ill.

Eldorado C.C. Asks Intervention in Tax Multiplier Suit

The Eldorado Chamber of Commerce has asked the Saline County Board of Supervisors to have the state's attorney intervene in a lawsuit filed by Rock Island county which seeks to have the tax equalization law on the county level declared unconstitutional.

"It is the feeling of the Eldorado Chamber of Commerce that Saline County would benefit by the county board authorizing the state's attorney to intervene as a party plaintiff in this lawsuit," a letter to the county board said. "By doing so, there is a possibility that the people of this county will benefit."

The letter pointed to its objection to the increased tax multiplier for use on taxes assessed in 1957. Pointing to the Rock Island county action, the letter said: "The Chamber of Commerce understands that there is still a possibility of obtaining relief from this burdensome multiplier."

Recover $1,505 From Cash Box In Men's Auto

Second Armed Robbery of Clubs In Alexander County

CAIRO, Ill. (UP)—Three men who were captured 22 minutes after the holdup of the El Patio night club here early today have been charged with armed robbery.

The men were identified by Alexander County Sheriff Carl Clutts as Thomas Sloan, 20, Chicago, William John Kendrick, 23, Cambridge, Mass., and John Joseph Rooney, Lynn, Mass.

It was the second holdup of an Alexander County night club within four days.

State policeman Thomas Stilley and officer Donald Thady of Anna, who made the arrest, recovered $1,505 from a cash box in the car of the three men. Stilley said it was the same amount taken from the El Patio.

The officers arrested the three men near Thebes, 17 miles northwest of Cairo, after hearing an alert on the robbery over their police radio. Stilley approached the car as Thady covered him with a sawed-off shotgun.

Stilley said one of the men remarked: "Let's give up. They have us covered with a shotgun." Stilley said the men were armed with 22 and .38 caliber pistols.

Five Patrons Robbed

Sheriff Clutts said the bandits entered the El Patio and announced "This is a heist." They took money from a cash drawer and robbed five patrons from Mayfield, Ky., Clutts said.

Authorities said Abstract Ransom, manager of the club, was in a vestibule phone booth making a call when the bandits came in. They did not notice him. When Ransom heard the word "heist" he left the club and notified authorities. "We almost got them inside the club," Clutts said.

The bandits hit Robert Wise, a bartender, in the mouth, but he was not seriously hurt.

Clutts said the three men had between 500 and 600 dollars on them besides the money in the cash box.

Five armed bandits robbed the Thunderbird Club northwest of Cairo of some $14,000, including 13,000 from patrons, early last Thursday. Harold E. Fields, 41, Marshall, has been charged with armed robbery in connection with that holdup. Authorities are still searching for the bandits.

Clutts said he did not think the three men arrested early today were involved in the Thunderbird holdup, but added that patrons will be asked to look at the men.

May Divert Foreign Aid Purchases to Ease Recession

By United Press
A State Department official raised the possibility today that some foreign aid purchases being made overseas may be diverted to the home front to ease the business recession.

Deputy Undersecretary C. Douglas Dillon told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the administration was "earnestly studying" the matter. Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) said Saturday that he had asked President Eisenhower to consider whether such a plan was feasible.

Dillon said "it may be practicable, and certainly desirable." He was questioned by the committee in its overall examination of U. S. foreign policy.

If any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him. Rev. 3:20.

We need to repeat again and again the utter simplicity of a God filled life.

Stassen's Political Itch

Few men who know Harold Stassen have imagined that during his tenure as President Eisenhower's disarmament aide he abandoned all political ambition. His determination to seek the nomination for governor in Pennsylvania simply confirms that.

If he should gain the nod and then go on to win the election, Stassen would be in a rare position, for he would then have held the governorship of two states, Minnesota and Pennsylvania. It must be noted, however, that the outlook for him in Pennsylvania is not bright. State Republican leaders voice no enthusiasm over his candidacy, even though they need a "name candidate" to recapture the Statehouse from the Democrats.

Here, as in his two unsuccessful bids for the GOP presidential nomination in 1948 and 1952, Stassen encounters resistance.

He started so well. He was a highly effective young governor in Minnesota from 1938 into World War II. He keynoted the 1940 GOP convention. He built an enviable war record in the Navy, and was a useful member of the U. S. delegation to the U. N. charter conference at San Francisco in 1945.

But after he became an avowed presidential bidder in 1947 something happened. He seemed to press, to try too hard to be too many things to too many people. Judging from the reaction of top Pennsylvania Republicans, to re-enter the political lists in a big way, Harold Stassen has a tremendous job of persuasion ahead of him.

Do You Suppose It'll Ever Come to This?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Unemployment is Beginning To Pinch Midwest; Ike's Economic Advisers Nettle Over Failure To Heed Their Warning; Senators Blame Steel Industry Over Failure To Heed Their Warning; Senators Blame Steel Industry In Part For Recession.

WASHINGTON. — The recession weighs heavily on much of the Midwest. On a quick trip through parts of Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, this writer saw men lined up in the cold outside the Indianapolis unemployment relief office at 7:30 a. m. They had over an hour to wait before the office opened. By the time it opened the line was half a block long.

General Motors' giant Allison plant at Indianapolis normally employs around 18,000 men. What it employs now is a secret, but it's reported men with up to 12 years seniority have been laid off.

Machine shops, hitherto busy with orders from the airplane factories, are having a tough time. The airplane industry is waiting to see whether planes will give way entirely to guided missiles.

The Ohio river valley, from Pittsburgh down past Wheeling, Bellaire, Martins Ferry, Steubenville, has become one of the great industrial centers of the nation. Then banks of the river are studied with factories, many of them now working part time.

A worker from Wheeling Steel, laid off with eight years seniority, was cheerful, though he said the pinch was beginning to hurt. There were anxious inquiries from a man with 16 years seniority laid off by a Wheeling building and supply firm. A West Virginia coal miner asked me whether Eisenhower was right that business would pick up in March. When I told him many economic experts disagreed with Ike, felt the pick-up wouldn't come until midsummer, he remarked, "What's a man going to do between now and midsummer? There are a lot of meals between February and midsummer."

Sadly, he turned and walked away.

IRKED ECONOMIC COUNCIL
The President's Council of Economic Advisers is so unhappy over the recession and the manner in which its reports have been ignored that some of the advisers are talking about resigning next month.

Raymond Saulnier and colleagues saw the recession coming a long time ago and warned the President repeatedly. They also made recommendations to head off the slump. The White House, however, refused to act.

As professional economists they have now been put in an embarrassing position. The outside world doesn't know, and more particularly their colleagues in the economic world don't know, the inside facts about their warnings. Hence the possibility of resignations.

The steel industry may be partly to blame for the recession, according to a secret report by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee. The senators, headed by Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, point out that three separate price boosts took place "to an average increase of $19.50 a ton in less than a year."

These increases will unbalance the budget of the U. S. government, biggest buyer of steel in the world. The effect on the national economy, points out the blistering Senate report, was to hike the price of automobiles and appliances beyond many consumers' pocketbooks. The ensuing buyer resistance, senators state, helped cause the recession.

"Faced with a decline in demand," the report warns, "the steel companies can be expected to reduce their output, which would cause their overhead costs to be spread over a lesser number of units, resulting in high total unit costs. This, in turn, may provide a rationale for a still further price increase. In this way, a vicious cycle of price increases, lower demand, and higher unit costs may be set in motion."

The report charges that steel prices have soared steadily upward even when production and labor costs have declined.

"No matter what the change in cost or in demand," the report declares, "steel prices since 1947 have moved steadily and regularly in only one direction—upward."

U. S. STEEL DIVIDENDS

To show how these price increases have gone into the pockets of the big steel stockholders the report discloses that U. S. Steel Corporation's profits have risen from $6.28 per ton in 1947 to $18 per ton in 1957. This has been accomplished by boosting steel prices despite production declines in 1949, 1954 and 1957 and labor reductions in 1950 and 1955.

The committee charges that U. S. Steel, as the giant of the steel industry, has set the pace for the smaller steel companies which have followed the leader with remarkable conformity every time U. S. Steel has jacked up its prices.

This behavior, the committee suggests, violates the American free-enterprise system which is based "upon the concept of competition." The senators suggest the need of new legislation.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The red-face department: Dean Acheson, at the big foreign aid bipartisan lunch introduced Spyros Skouras, head of 20th Century-Fox, as head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Charming Mrs. Lausche, wife of Ohio's long-time governor, now senator, confides to friends that in Washington she's never been so lonesome in her life. Walter Munroe of the Railroad Trainmen, suffering from severe layoffs, has coined this motto for the like administration: "Let 'em eat quail." George Killian, head of American President Lines, met for the first time James Killian, former head of MIT, now Ike's science adviser. "Everybody's been asking me whether I run steamships," said James Killian. "And everybody's been asking me how things are at MIT," said George Killian.

Fore! Golf Ball Goes 170 Miles Hour

PHILADELPHIA — (UPI) — Persons who ignore the cry of "fore" on a golf course might be interested to know that a well-hit golf ball travels at an estimated 170 miles an hour.

It was recently demonstrated at the Franklin Institute here that even a speeding arrow cannot match the velocity of a well-propelled golf ball.

A pichometer, which measures the speed of objects passing thru photo-electric beams in its exterior, measured the speed of a 24-inch wooden, steel-tipped arrow at a high speed of 128 miles an hour.

A couple of years ago, a golf pro banged a ball through the machine at 158 mph, top speed for any object tested to date. It was also believed that since the pro had to concentrate on accuracy, he wasn't able to give his shot the extra push possible on the links.

Pancho Gonzales registered 112.8 with a tennis ball a few years ago, while Bob Feller set the record for a baseball throw at 98.6.

When you have the time... will you have the money?

HOW OFTEN have you thought about the things you would like to do... if you had the time and the money? Perhaps you would like to travel, catch up on your fishing or gardening, or do any number of things you've never had time to do, such as taking part in civic or other activities.

Today, your chances of living to enjoy a long and vigorous retirement are better than ever. What is more, they are improving every day, thanks to modern medical science. So it is highly probable that you will have the time.

But the big question is: will you have the money? The time to start planning for adequate retirement income to meet your needs, hopes and ambitions during sunset years is now.

The first step in such a plan is to figure out, from your present life insurance, pension plans, investments and Social Security, how much income you will have.

Metropolitan Representatives are trained and equipped to help you compute that figure. They will show you step-by-step how you can supplement it to provide more adequate financial security during your retirement years.

A Metropolitan Field-man will be pleased to explain how you can add an extra $100, $200 or more each month to your income after you retire with a custom-made Retirement Plan.

Of course, such a plan has life insurance provisions to give added protection for your family now... and it is always comforting to know that the cash and loan values in a Metropolitan retirement plan can be used for unforeseen contingencies.

The sooner you start on a sound retirement program the better... and the lower the premium. Call your Metropolitan Representative today, and give him a chance to show that...

Metropolitan service is as local as Main Street... as close as your phone

Steffey Charges Discrimination Against Illinois By Ag. Dep't

CHICAGO — Discrimination against Illinois farmers by the U. S. Department of Agriculture has been charged in a protest sent to Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, by Otto Steffey, President of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

The entire allotment of funds for the corn acreage reserve in Illinois has already been exhausted, with thousands of applications being returned because of "not sufficient funds."

Basis of Steffey's complaint is that the formula for distribution of funds by states was changed for 1958. "Farmers," wrote Steffey, "knew that the overall amount available for the program had been reduced, but they assumed that the allocation of these funds would again be made on the basis of alloted acres and productivity as in 1957. Such a formula seemed sound, practical and equitable."

Steffey added: "The formula used for 1958 is heavily weighted in favor of the growers in those states that used their share and more last year. It is severely discriminatory against the corn growers in Illinois and those other states that did not arrange to use their full 1957 allocation."

"The problem in Illinois is further aggravated by the fact that the funds were obligated on a first-come, first-served basis. This resulted in some of the farmers who had offered their entire farms to the conservation reserve being left out by the time they were advised that their bids were rejected."

"We understand that approximately $19 million was allocated for the 1958 conservation reserve program in Illinois, a major portion of this to be used in the 'Entire Farm Program' which has now been abandoned. Farmers are wondering why these funds are not transferred for use in the corn acreage reserve program."

Steffey also charged that no serious effort has been made to use "payments in kind" to encourage participation in the acreage reserve program, "although it is permissible under present law."

Farm Bureau leaders in Illinois generally believe that many farmers would put more land in the soil bank if they could be paid in corn or other feed grains, rather than in cash, according to Steffey.

He added: "The Illinois Agricultural Association believes that in the event any additional funds are appropriated or in the event there is any authorization for shifting funds, that the discrimination against Illinois corn growers should be eliminated and the allocation should be based on the corn acreage allotment and productivity, as was done in 1957. It will be keenly appreciated if you will use your influence in support of this position on this important matter."

ATOM AGE AUTO—The Nucleon, a three-eighths scale model developed by Ford Motor Co., is an advanced styling conception of an atomic-powered car of the future. The stylists envision a replaceable power package available in varying sizes to enable the driver to select his own horsepower. The atomic core in the reactor at the rear of the car could be recharged periodically at charging stations which would largely replace the service station as we know it today.

Notes from Home Adviser

By Lady Martin Hunt

Valentine Day, in the new Farm Building at 21 W. Robinson St., was a day of great activity, as the office equipment and personnel of both Home and Farm Bureau were moved. Moving was a tremendous job, and the work of Farm Bureau board members is truly appreciated. The building and offices are lovely, and we hope everyone will stop in to see us the first minute you can! Local Leader Training Schools, Board and Council meetings, and all other meetings (except annual meeting) will be held in the basement of the building. A kitchen will be equipped before so very long. Oh, and there is plenty of parking space, all around!

ATTENTION! The office will be open 5 days a week now. The secretary is working full time. Office hours are 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., Monday through Friday. Office is closed from 12 to 1 p. m. for the noon hour. The telephone number is the same number the office had in the city hall, CL 37711.

The first meeting will be the 1958-59 program planning meeting March 4 at 9 a. m.

This week is National 4-H Week, and the county is remembering county wide rally on the night of March 13, and clubs have been invited by the Home Economics Extension Council to participate in an exhibit contest showing the meaning of 4-H club work, activities, etc. The rally will begin at 7 p. m., and will begin in the Muddy School Auditorium. Miss "Sunny" Dickens, U. of I. Recreation Specialist, will be in charge of the recreation program.

On February 12, a local leader training school was held in the City Hall. Miss Virginia Saidel, University of Illinois Home Furnishings Specialist and former Saline County Home Adviser, presented the lesson on "Decorating with Paint." Approximately 46 local leader homemakers were present, with 100 per cent unit attendance. On the following day a special interest lesson entitled "How to Make Slip covers" was presented by Miss Saidel to 10 local leader homemakers. The lesson was a laboratory and lecture session, given in the city hall, and muslin patterns for 2 different types of chairs were made. The "5-piece" slip cover method was taught.

Sides Already Taken

To Launch Campaign to Win Voter Approval of Judicial Reform

SPRINGFIELD (UP) — An organized campaign to win voter approval of the proposed "judicial reform" amendment to the Illinois Constitution to revamp the state court system will be launched here next week.

The occasion will be a lunch sponsored by the "Citizens Committee For Modern Courts" to be held March 5. The committee, with headquarters in Chicago, includes many of the same organizations and individuals who worked for passage of the "blue ballot" amendment to permit easier changes in the Constitution.

Sides in the fight for and against the judicial reform amendment have already been taken. Gov. Stratton has led the preliminary skirmishing with a series of speeches in support of the proposal which will be voted on Nov. 4.

Both the governor and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley are slated to speak at the lunch next week.

Bar Groups Support
Besides Stratton and Daley and the state and Chicago bar associations, the amendment has support from many private organizations.

The principal organized opposition has come from the associations of justices of the peace and police magistrates, whose elective offices would be abolished under the amendment.

Individuals who have spoken out against the amendment include state Republican Chairman Stanley H. Guyer, Rockford, who does not speak for the party on this matter, and Rubin G. Cohn, of the University of Illinois law school.

Both the state and Chicago bar associations have endorsed the amendment despite some compromise provisions written into it. The bar groups were particularly disappointed because the present method of electing judges was retained, but they agreed to support the amendment after a provision was included to permit a possible later change in the selection and tenure of judges.

Despite the bar association stand, many attorneys still have reservations concerning the amendment. Cohn has emerged as one of their leading spokesmen.

Cohn said the amendment, despite many admirable provisions, is "retrogressive" in several aspects. "It is a threat to the independence of the judicial system."

Under the existing system, he said, judges are protected by the Constitution in their terms of office. The amendment removes such protection and places them at the whim of the Legislature, he said.

Cite High Cost
Cohn said he also was particularly concerned because the proposed amendment would subject the rule-making authority of the Supreme Court to "the veto of the Legislature." Under the existing court system, he said, this rule-making authority is supreme.

Ronald H. Hagel, Peoria, president of the Peoria County Justices, ing the proposed amendment," he said, "will give an estimate of how much money it will cost to put the new system into operation." It will cost a lot more than anyone dares admit, he said.

Washington, D. C., leads the world in number of telephones per capita, with 64 telephones for every 100 persons.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Henry Farmer, who left us five years ago March 3, 1953:

In the cemetery, not very far away,

Lies a dear and loving son,

That God called away.

He called him to his home on high,

We cannot understand just why

Oh how we miss you,

No one will ever know.

God gave us strength to bear it,

Courage to meet the blow.

But what it meant to lose you,

The world will never know.

Folks may think we have forgotten you

When they see us smile,

But they do not know the heart-

ache

That lies behind it all the while

Sadly missed by mother, Mrs.

Grace Farmer and brothers and sisters. *207-1

Major Kress was burly, red-faced and reeked of whisky. His bare arms and surgeon's apron were smeared with the carmine of men's blood. Straightening from his examination of the still figure on the stretcher beside the Gallatin ranch house door, he shook his head, his voice a blunt growl.

"Very little chance. Under the best of conditions, maybe. A bullet-punctured lung is very bad at any time. Here it's wicked, for this cursed freezing fog is enough to give a sound man congestion of the lungs. The fever is already working in this boy. Wish I could say something different, Ashland, but there it is."

Major Ashland's face was desperate. "You're full of whisky, Kress—in no condition to judge. You should be reported!"

"Of course I got whisky in me," came the curt retort. "And until this nightmare is over with I'll keep on having it in me. But never too much to keep me from knowing exactly what I'm doing—and doing it right. You should trade places with me, Ashland, and meet the look of some poor devil whose shattered arm or leg has to come off and who knows it. You'd find your self reaching for the whisky bottle too."

Maj. Ross Ashland turned to Ward Sebastian, shoulders sagging. "He's right, of course. And he's really a very able man. I had no right to say what I did to him. But I—Phil—"

He shook his head, brushing a hand across his eyes. "Major," Sebastian said, "Phil isn't dead yet. Kress said if we could get him to a place where he'd be sheltered and nursed properly, he'd have a chance. That place is my ranch. With your permission, Sam and I will take him there."

"That's miles away," Major Ashland said dully. "And the road rough. He'd never make it."

"We've got to make the try," insisted Sebastian. "We won't move him in a wagon. We'll carry him on a tarpaulin slung between two mules. Sam and I brought a woman 40 miles that way one time to the doctor in Yreka. She lived, and so did her baby. This is Phil's only chance. De we take it?"

Major Ashland straightened, spoke quietly. "Of course. And thanks for thinking clearly, while I've been fuzzy headed. How can I help?"

"Blankets, several of them. Sam, we'll take the same pair of mules we used to carry Mrs. Trent that time."

They slung the heavy canvas tarpaulin between the two mules and padded it deep with blankets. They wrapped Phil Ashland in still more blankets, lifted him into place and made more lashings to secure him there.

"He'll ride like a baby in that sling," Sebastian said. "And with the mules giving off their animal heat on each side of him, he'll be warm. All right, Sam, we travel!" "I'll be furnishing some of the prayers Kress advised," Major Ashland said huskily. "And once it is sure, either way, I'd appreciate the word."

The afternoon was a good half gone, with the promise of another bleak and freezing night ahead. And as the Gallatin ranch and all that it held faded into the chill murk, the feeling came to Ward Sebastian that he'd just emerged from a nightmare of unreality.

Here were no sounding guns, no bugles tenoring their high, nervous calls. Here no wounded thinly crying, no dead men lying crumpled and twisted. Here was complete and soothing silence, broken only by the thump of hoofs on earth and the occasional small creak of saddle leather.

They kept the mules to a fast pace, but the leaden daylight had faded out and a good hour of Stygian darkness had been ridden through before they crossed the final rim and picked up the faint glitter of the ranch lights.

Old Bob Gayle heard them coming in and was there to challenge them.

In the scant spray of the lantern light they lifted Phil Ashland carefully to the ground. Sebastian put a hand inside the cocoon of blankets.

The three women were gathered around the kitchen table. When Sebastian stepped through the door, tall and shadowy out of the night, it was Connie Ashland who came to her feet.

Something in his expression put her hand to her throat. "Ward—what's wrong? Phil—Uncle Ross—?"

"Phil," he said steadily. "Wounded. Sam Lester and I brought him here for care and nursing."

"Phil—wounded!" Now it was Kitty Dutra on her feet, facing Sebastian, catching him by both arms, her voice going husky with dread. "The truth, Ward! How bad?"

Understanding turned his words gentle. "Bad enough. The Army doctor said he'd need prayer as well as the best of nursing to pull him through. He looked at Connie again. 'He's a very sick boy.'"

So they carried Phil in, stripped away the blood-stained uniform, put him to bed. No fresh bleeding showed, but the young soldier's cheeks were hectic with livid color, and he was beginning to mumble strange incoherencies.

"It's the fever," Mrs. Gayle said grimly, "that's the mean devil we must whip. If we don't, it will burn him up."

Harrisburg Women Attend District Cancer Meeting at West Frankfort

Mrs. James Gaskins, Mrs. Morris Skaggs, Mrs. John Humm and Mrs. Robert Davenport attended the annual district meeting of the American Cancer Society at the Franklin County Country club at West Frankfort last week.

Guest speaker was Vice Admiral Francis P. Old, Ret., of Chicago, the state Crusade chairman, who disclosed interesting facts he had learned since undertaking the work with the cancer organization.

He pointed out that 150,000 lives had been saved the past year by early diagnosis and proper treatment. He related that there are fewer deaths from cancer among men in service due to compulsory medical checkups periodically. He said 75,000 additional American lives would have been saved had the victims sought early diagnosis and proper treatment.

Congress has designated the month of April as Cancer Control Month and Americans all over the nation from Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, honorary national chairman, to the smallest county volunteer workers, will be working together to realize the fullest success of the crusade, he stated. All volunteer work and each contribution will help assure everybody better health personally. The 1958 National Goal is $30,000,000 with the Illinois share $1,650,000.

A panel discussion led by Robert Kritt, national board member from Chicago, was held. Participating were Mr. Kritt, Vice Admiral Old, Mrs. Evelyn Street, Illinois Organization and Service chairman from Chicago and L. Goebel Patton, national board member from West Frankfort.

Reports were made by county chairman regarding the individual county plans so far completed for this year's campaign with suggestions from the floor.

Again it was emphasized and agreed by all present at this meeting that it is individual efforts that save lives, and the hope was expressed that this thought will be remembered through the Cancer Control Month of April.

The meeting was opened with the invocation by the Rev. Edgar Purdy, pastor of the First Methodist church of West Frankfort.

Probe Chairman Says He Will File Resolution to Impeach Mack

Believes Accused Senators Will Have To Explain Actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Oren Harris of a special House investigating subcommittee announced today he will file a resolution to impeach Federal Communications Commissioner Richard A. Mack.

Harris also expressed belief that a group of senators—accused of "improper" influence on the FCC—will have to appear before his subcommittee to explain their actions.

Mack is accused of letting money and influence sway his official decisions. He has denied the charges, but has agreed to consider Harris' demand that he give up his $20,000-a-year post.

There have been unconfirmed reports that the White House has given Mack an ultimatum to quit or be fired.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters that Mack's resignation has not been received, but he refused to say whether one has been requested.

Baker Accuses Senators

Harris, Arkansas Democrat, made his statement in reply to a charge by George T. Baker, president of National Airlines, that Mack is being "crucified" and disgraced for not yielding to political pressure from senators in his FCC vote on TV Channel 10 in Miami.

Baker challenged the subcommittee to hale U. S. senators before it for questioning. He accused Sens. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), Spessard Holland (D-Fla.) and George Smathers (D-Fla.) of bringing "improper influence" on the FCC and said that they were escaping "punishment."

Harris told Baker "I don't think you should be too proud" of that statement.

Mack Voted for National

Baker was called before the subcommittee for questioning about the disputed award of Channel 10 to his company's wholly owned subsidiary, Public Service Television Inc. The award was by a 4-2 vote of the FCC.

Mack cast his vote for Public Service Television. The hearings have produced testimony that Thurman A. Whiteside, Miami attorney, to whom Mack was financially obligated, personally recommended that Mack vote for that firm.

The subcommittee also has heard that an insurance company in which Mack has an interest later placed a big insurance policy with Public Service Television.

SIU Students Are Featured on Baptist Hour

There was a group of students from the Baptist Union at SIU Carbondale, on the Baptist hour over WEBQ in Harrisburg this morning. Miss Lucille Steele directed the group and there was singing by the group and preaching by one of the young men. The program was designed to promote the union which has a devotional meeting and prayer at noon each day for the student members.

Following the radio appearance this morning, the students were guests of Dr. L. I. Webb for breakfast at Schnierle's restaurant. There were students from Peoria, Vandalia, Collinsville, Harrisburg and other cities included in the group. The students returned to their classes in Carbondale, immediately following the breakfast.

Archbishop Threatened by Phone Caller

BOSTON (AP) — Roman Catholic Archbishop Richard J. Cushing was under guard of armed plain clothesmen today after a profane telephone caller twice threatened him with death and also threatened to blow up Holy Cross Cathedral.

Nearly 100 police and detectives were assigned to the archbishop, but the 63-year-old prelate brushed the incident aside.

"Much ado about nothing," he said.

The archbishop said he planned to continue his routine as usual.

Detectives believe that two calls early Sunday were probably the work of a crank, but they said "We can't take any chances."

$150,000 in Jewelry, Cash Taken from Couple's Hotel Suite

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A wealthy Chicago couple occupying Arthur Godfrey's suite at the Kenilworth Hotel was robbed of $150,000 in cash and jewelry while they were at the pool, police reported today.

Police Chief Jesse Owens said one diamond bracelet taken from Mr. and Mrs. Titus Haffa was valued at $100,000. About $1,800 of the loot was in cash.

Haffa is president of the Webcor Corp., which manufactures electrical equipment in Chicago. He and his wife were guests of the hotel and had been living in Godfrey's suite for the past few days.

13 Illinois Highway Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — Double fatalities recorded in four separate accidents helped swell the Illinois weekend highway death toll to at least 13.

White House May Make Public Ike Pact With Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House hinted today that it might make public President Eisenhower's "clear understanding" with Vice President Richard M. Nixon on what to do in case of presidential disability.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty was asked by reporters whether the administration plans to make public the arrangement which Eisenhower disclosed at his news conference last week.

"I haven't any comment on it at this time," Hagerty said, emphasizing the words "at this time."

Asked whether that meant he would have something to say "later," Hagerty replied:

"I think I might, yes."

The President is reported to have agreed to delegate his full power and duties to Nixon if he considers he is unable to carry on as president.

done. Harrisburg has an ordinance regulating junk yards in the city limits.

Thaw Damages Roads

It was reported that the village of Raleigh passed a cleanup ordinance three years ago. Now, when a person doesn't clean up his own premises, the village does it and charges the cost of the operation to the individual.

"We haven't lost a debt yet," said Bert Jones of Raleigh.

Sneed Jordan reported that the city of Harrisburg last week put out four containers on the square for paper and other refuse and that if the public co-operates in using them, more containers will be ordered.

Road Superintendent Brown, in discussing another subject, said the thaw following the long freeze last month had caused considerable damage to roads in the county, that his men were to continue their work this Saturday and Sunday in an effort to get all county roads passable.

In some cases, school buses were staying on main gravel roads with pupils having to get to the buses if they lived on impassable roads.

Load limits have been placed on gravel roads, Brown stated.

Plane Crashes Kill Five in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Plane crashes, including a collision in flight, killed five persons in a weekend of aerial tragedy in southern California skies.

AF Debunks Report Plane With 25 Crashes

WINNFIELD, La. (AP) — The Air Force today debunked a report that a silver four-engine plane with 25 passengers aboard crashed in or near the dense Kisatchie National Forest in north Louisiana Sunday.

However, the report of a plane in distress caused a major mystery and new searches were planned.

After a four-hour search Sunday the Air Force stopped its fruitless air scouting between Winnfield and Jonesboro, 250 miles northwest of New Orleans.

Jessie J. Chelette, 53, who mans a state fire tower, vowed he saw a distressed plane apparently going down as its pilot frantically radioed distress signals at about 11:30 a. m. Sunday.

Chelette said "the military made an awful mistake saying those distress calls were a prank."

"It's evident that a plane is down," Chelette said. "The pilot called and my short wave radio in the tower picked him up. He begged for anybody to come in on the radio and answer. No prankster could beg so pitifully for help."

"The motors quit running after they gave some loud pops. The plane started gliding. I could see it all from my tower. He told me he had 25 passengers and would have to make a forced landing."

Chelette said he turned his back to the plane to telephone for aid, but heard the pilot say that he was hitting tree tops.

He said the plane disappeared from view, and no explosion was heard.

Father Held In Death of Four-Month-Old Son

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Clyde Benefield, 29, was held on a manslaughter charge here today in the death of his 4-month-old son, Gary Lee.

Police said he had admitted striking the infant with his hand Friday and biting him on the heel. The baby was dead on arrival at St. Louis Children's Hospital Saturday night.

A coroner's physician said death was caused by a brain injury resulting from a blow or fall. The father at first said he accidentally dropped the child while beating him.

Later he admitted to police he had bitten the baby on previous occasions. A physician said there were small picture wounds on the left cheek and left heel, a laceration of the chin and a bruise on the lower part of the back.

Police said the mother, Bonnie Sue, 19, told them she had threatened to leave Benefield if he did not stop abusing the baby.

Family of Three Found, Victims Of Asphyxiation

LISLE, Ill. (AP) — Authorities today scheduled an autopsy into the deaths of a family of three whose bodies were found in their home, apparent victims of asphyxiation.

his elegance of speech. It is not the music of the voice nor the meter of the poetic words when we pray which impress our Father.

Our logic is doubtless lost on the Creator of all sequence and order. God cares not for the methods of our prayer nor for our dramatic abilities.

must come the sincerity with which we talk with God. We pray because of our human need, because of our faith and because we seek guidance to honestly do His will. We kneel before His throne because we are humble.

We believe in His compassion, His love and His strength.

If there be eloquence in prayer it is found in simplicity, in confession and in hunger for the food which gives strength for life eternal.

It's Time to Get Started

By HENRY L. FREE
NEA Garden Editor

This is the time of the year when the new catalogs are being poured over. Study them well.

The colorful blooms of the new roses in the catalogs were a reminder that the best time to plant roses is very early in spring.

The pruning of fruit trees and grapevines can be done at any time when the weather permits. It is advisable to follow instructions in bulletins on fruit culture issued by your local county agricultural agent. These bulletins are free and invariably well illustrated.

HOTBEDS and/or cold frames should be made ready according to your locality. Place in a sheltered spot where they will receive the benefit of southern sunlight. A satisfactory soil to use in starting seeds is one made from equal parts of clean coarse sand, garden loam and a humus material such as peat moss or vermiculite.

Both hotbeds and cold frames may be used soon for starting such flowers as China aster, marigolds, snapdragons, stocks, Salpiglossis, petunias and Salvia. Tomato, pepper, cauliflower, cabbage, Brussels sprouts seed also may be sown. Time of sowing is generally six to eight weeks before plants can be set in the garden.

It is a good idea to examine winter stored dahlia tubers, and if they seem dry, to sprinkle them lightly with water. Varieties behave differently when stored. Dahlia tubers store well in sand kept slightly moist, and in the dark. Stored gladiolus corms, too, should be examined and those soft or dried should be discarded. Before planting be sure to coat dahlia tubers with dusting sulfur and gladiolus corms with a DDT dust.

Spray trees and shrubs subject to scale insects, aphids, mealybugs and similar pests now in their dormant stage. Application should not be made when temperature is below 45 degrees. Most commonly used are dormant oils like Volex,

Oceanic Salt
If all the oceans dried up, they would leave about 4,419,300 cubic feet of rock salt, which is about 14 1/2 times the bulk of the entire European continent, including the mountains.
